A woman with blonde hair is shown from the chest up, standing under a shower. She has her eyes closed and her arms raised, with her hands near her head. She is wearing a dark green, possibly wet, top. The background is dark, and the shower water is visible as a curtain of droplets. There are some faint, blurry lights in the background.

The concept of the shower dates back to ancient Greece, where athletes would shower under jets of water after their competitions. The first modern shower was invented in the early 19th century by an Englishman named William Feetham.

If you enjoy singing, there's a sixty-three percent chance that you do some crooning in the shower. Lots of people love to sing songs as they soap up, probably because the shower is a private place to emote and to go for those hard-to-reach high notes! Singing is also a form of therapy, so never be ashamed of singing in the shower. It's a great way to express yourself and to de-stress
